MoMA Design Store Rewards Program

Time: 2022/03 - 2022/09

Role: Digital Design Manager

Project Overview: To enhance the customer return rate and viscosity, the MoMA Design Store team build a loyalty program, MoMA Design Store Rewards. I co-led the branding section of this project and led the digital experience entirely.

1/ BRAND IDENTITY - DIRECTION 1

The creative team, led by the Art Director and me, explored two visual directions.

The first direction (show on the right) highlights MoMA Design Store's core mission, "to bring good design into people's lives by literally putting it into their homes and hands. ". The other concept conveys the idea of a loyalty program visually.

The image displays a collection of MoMA Design Store branding elements. At the top left, three reward cards are shown against a black background. Each card has a solid color (green, pink, yellow) and features the MoMA logo and 'Design Store' text at the top, and the word 'Rewards' at the bottom. To the right of these cards is a graphic element consisting of overlapping squares in orange, red, and green. Below this, there are two promotional banners. The top banner is white with a black border. It features the 'Rewards' logo with a small graphic, the text 'Everyday perks for everyone.', and a 'Join Now' button. To its right is a graphic of stacked squares in orange, red, and green. The bottom banner is also white with a black border. It features the same 'Rewards' logo and text, along with a 'Join Now' button. To its right is a photograph of a modern interior scene with a white wall, a pink vase with flowers, a white globe, and various colorful objects on a surface.

2/ DIGITAL USER JOURNEY -

SIGN UP & LOG IN

I mapped out the core digital experience, with help from the Retention Marketing Manager.

Initially inspired by competitors, I planned to build a new loyalty program landing page for new customers and logged-out customers to learn about the program. I will add customers' loyalty program status to the existing customer profile page.

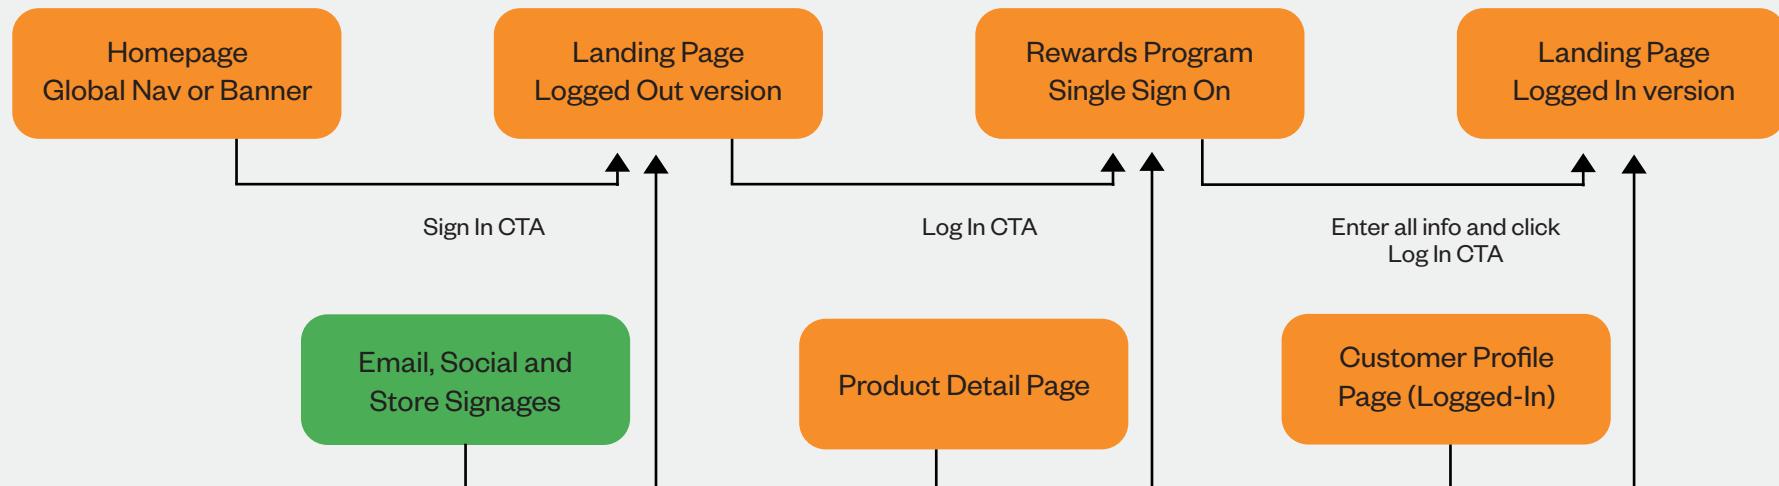

However, this user journey is complex and requires more development work. To simplify yet refine, I came up with the solution to combine the logged-out landing page and the logged-in landing page so that only a few content modules will be dynamic and keep the original customer profile page.

Other than the webpages, the creative team and I also designed the emails, social media content and store signages.

For the logged-out version of the landing page, we want to dive into how the program works and what kinds of benefit our customers can enjoy once they sign up for the program.

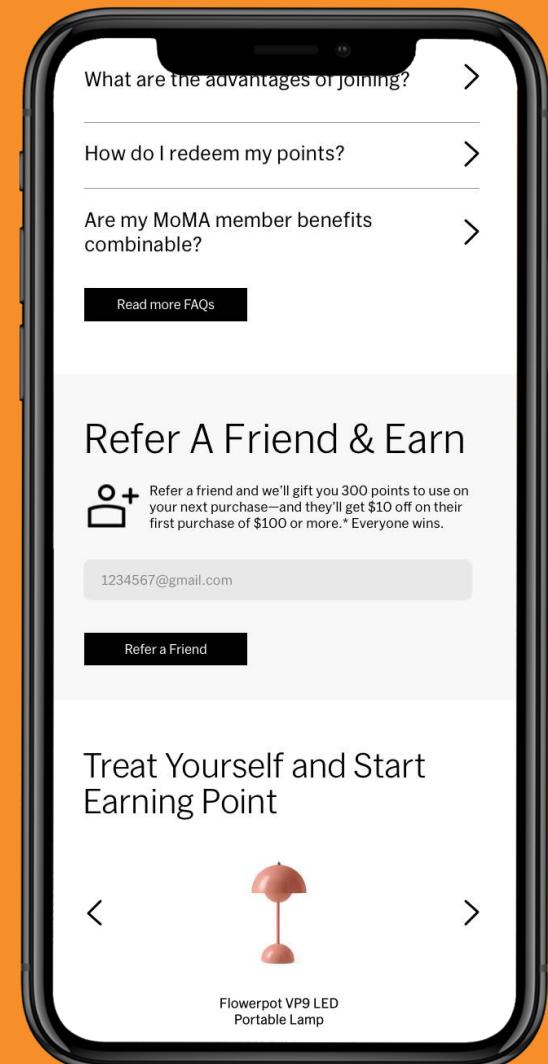

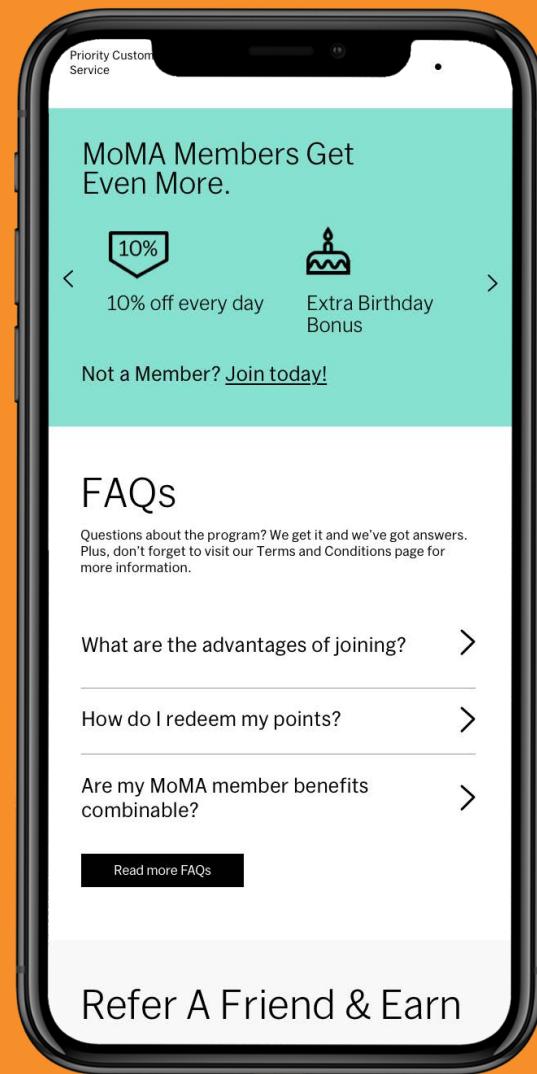

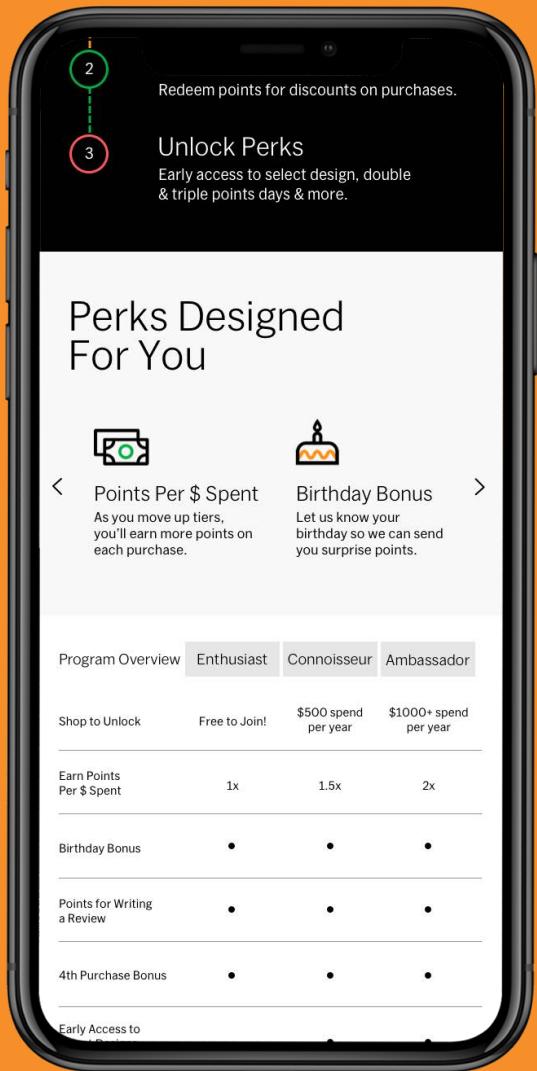

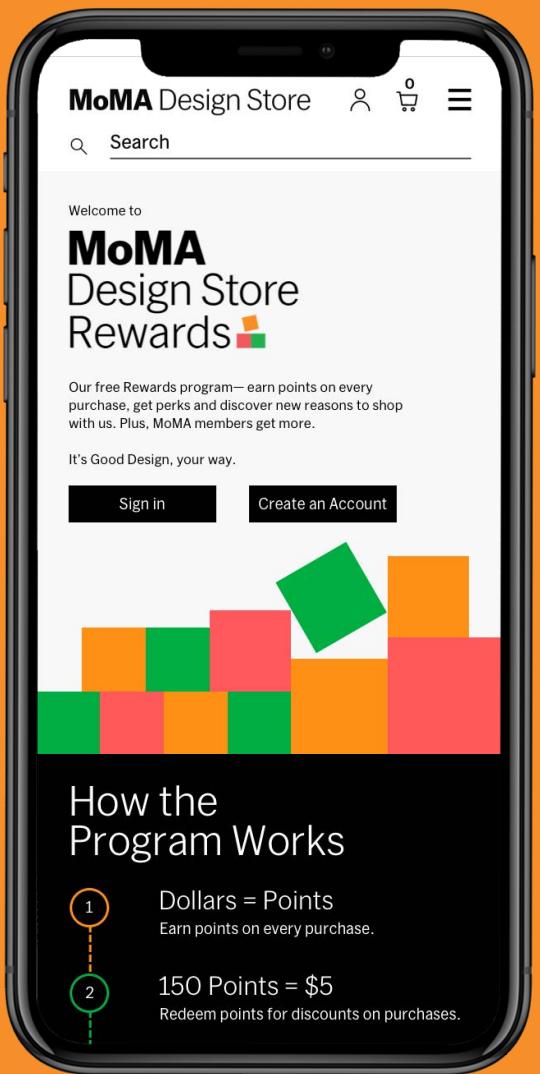

I designed the hero, How the Program Works, Benefit and FAQs modules.

We also want to layer in the Museum of Modern Art membership, as the museum members enjoy more benefits.

At the bottom of this page I added a product carousel. If a customer needs to think about it before joining the program, looking at our good designs will definitely make them want to participate.

7/ SINGLE SIGN ON

The Museum of Modern Art museum team took the initiative to create the single sign on page to streamline the log in process. (show on the bottom left)

Our team, the retail department, decided to create a version for the retail loyalty program, so that our customers can be immersed with the program when they sign in. I, therefore, designed the page on the right.

8/ LANDING PAGES - LOGGED IN VERSIONS

For the logged-in version of the landing page, it is important to highlight the customers' status and the Ways to Earn module at the top of the page, to motivate our customers to engage.

9/ CUSTOMER PROFILE PAGE, PRODUCT CATEGORY PAGE & PRODUCT DETAIL PAGE

I also added modules to the current Customer Profile page, Product Category page, Product Detail pages, so that customers can see info about the Rewards program on every step of their online journey.

The screenshot shows the 'My Account' section of the MoMA Design Store. On the left, there's a sidebar with links like 'Account Settings', 'Personal Info', 'Addresses', 'Payment Settings', 'Memberships', 'Rewards', 'Order Information', 'Shop Confidently', and 'Privacy Policy'. The main area features a 'Welcome Tingyu' message. Below it is a 'Your Rewards Status' section showing 'Current Points: 1234' and 'Tier Level: Enthusiast'. A progress bar indicates points needed to reach the 'Connoisseur' tier. There are buttons for 'See My Rewards' and 'Change your name, email and password'. Other sections include 'Personal Info', 'Membership', 'Addresses', 'Orders', 'Payment Settings', and 'My Rewards'.

The screenshot shows the MoMA Design Store homepage. At the top right, there's a 'MoMA Design Store Rewards' banner with text: 'Join our free program! The more you spend, the more perks you'll enjoy.' and 'Sign In or Sign Up'. The main navigation menu includes 'New', 'For the Home', 'Office', 'Tech', 'Accessories', 'Prints & Artists', 'Books', 'Kids', 'Only at MoMA', 'Holiday', 'Gifts', and 'Sale'. The 'Accessories' category is currently selected. A sidebar on the left lists various gift categories: Sustainable & Eco-friendly Gifts, Holiday Cards + Ornaments, Gift Cards, For Art Lovers, For Cooks, For the Home Decorator, For Hosts & Hostesses, For Self-Gifting, For Plant Lovers & Gardeners, For Techies, For Travelers, For Wellness & Comfort, MoMA Exclusive Gifts, Stocking Stuffers, Le Chocolat des Français, Cozy Holiday, and Cheerful Gifts. Two products are highlighted: a 'Woven Triangle Bag' and a 'Kusama Pumpkins'.

The screenshot shows a product detail page for the 'MoMA Baggu Recycled Nylon Tote Bag'. The top navigation bar is identical to the homepage. The product image shows two women holding the tote bags. The product title is 'MoMA Baggu Recycled Nylon Tote Bag', with a 'NEW' badge. It has a rating of ★★★★☆ 2 Reviews and a price of $16 Non-Member and $14.40 Member. A note says 'MEMBERS SAVE UP TO 20% & FREE SHIPPING $35+ DETAILS'. The color 'White' is selected. The item number is Item# 18701-161746 and it's in stock. There are buttons for 'Add to Cart' and 'Description', 'Details', 'Care', and 'Shipping & Returns'. A detailed description notes that it's a MoMA exclusive, a collaboration with Baggu, made from 100% recycled ripstop nylon, and is durable and reusable. It's described as an eco-friendly alternative to plastic shopping bags. A '90 Day Satisfaction Guarantee' link is also present.

10/ STORE + ONLINE EXPERIENCE

One of the most challenging parts of this project is how to link the store experience and the online experience with limited development bandwidth.

Different from shopping online, where points can automatically redeemed during checkout, customers who are shopping in stores needs to show the redemption code at checkout.

In the ideal situation, I would create customized landing pages for each stores' signage. This way, I can introduce the loyalty program while adding content about individual stores. (MoMA Design Store has three physical stores in New York City. Each store has a slightly different product assortment and store events.)

However, given the tight timeline and the workload, I have to combine the store experience with the online experience.

The screenshot shows the MoMA Design Store website with a focus on the rewards program. At the top, there's a navigation bar with categories like New, For the Home, Office, Tech, Accessories, Prints & Artists, Books, Kids, Only at MoMA, Holiday, Gifts, and Sale. Below the navigation is a search bar and a shopping cart icon. The main content area features a large graphic of colorful blocks representing rewards. A section titled "Welcome, Tingyu" shows the user's status: Current Points: 1234, Tier Level: Enthusiast, with a progress bar indicating points needed to reach the Connoisseur tier. Below this, a "Your Rewards" section shows a message: "You have enough points for $5 toward your next purchase." There are two buttons: "Shop Online" and "Redeem For Store Purchase", with a green arrow pointing to the "Redeem For Store Purchase" button. Further down, there's a section titled "There Are Many Ways to Earn" with icons for making a purchase, birthday bonus, creating an account, following on Instagram, following on Facebook, signing up for a newsletter, writing a review, and making purchases. At the bottom, a diagram titled "How the Program Works" shows a flow: 1. Dollars = Points (Earn points on every purchase), 2. 150 Points = $5 (Redeem points for discounts on purchases), and 3. Unlock Perks (Early access to select design, double & triple points days & more).

This screenshot shows the same rewards program interface as the previous one, but for a customer with enough points to redeem. The "Your Points" bar is full (487 points), and the "Your Tier" is listed as "Enthusiast". The "Redeem For Store Purchase" button is highlighted with a green border. Below the points bar, four reward options are shown: $5 (150 points), $10 (300 points), $15 (450 points), and $20 (600 points). A green arrow points from the "Redeem For Store Purchase" button in the first screenshot to the $5 reward option here.

When the customer has enough points to redeem

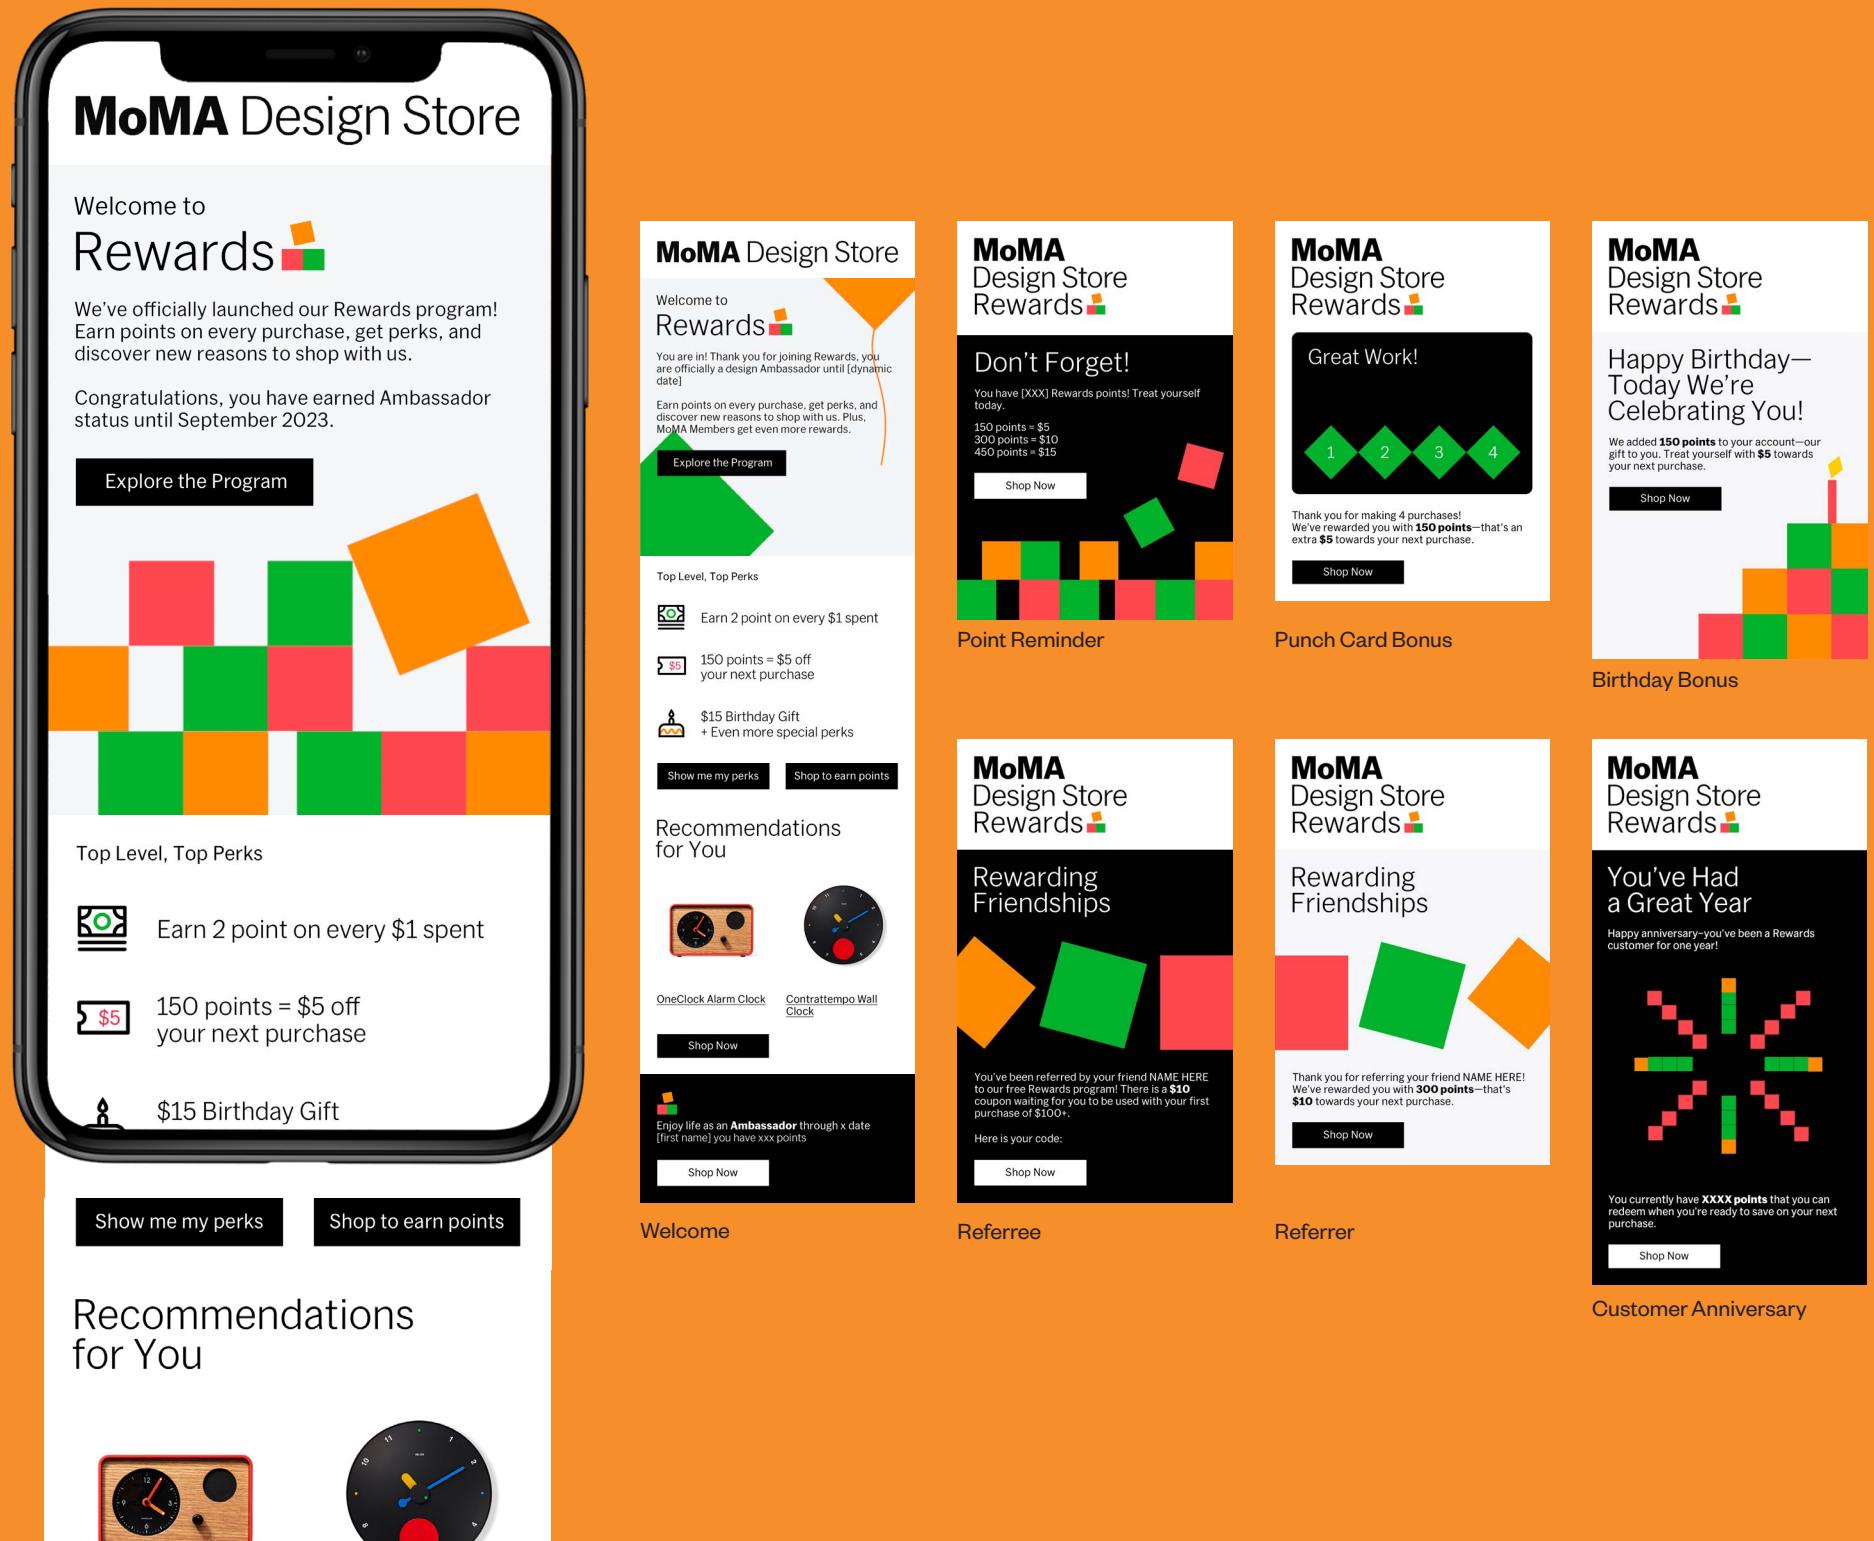

This screenshot shows the same rewards program interface for a customer who does not have enough points to redeem. The "Your Points" bar is only partially filled (87 points), and the "Your Tier" is "Enthusiast". The "Redeem For Store Purchase" button is not highlighted. Below the points bar, the same four reward options are shown: $5 (150 points), $10 (300 points), $15 (450 points), and $20 (600 points).

When the customer does not have enough points to redeem

11/ EMAILS

The creative team designed all the promotional emails, from program announcement to welcome email, from point reminder notification to birthday bonus.

The team also created dynamic email banners to add to transactional and behavior emails.

12/ SOCIAL MEDIA

Besides emails, webpages, and store collaterals, I created the social media content to promote the program with the Assistant Director of Branding and External Events.

MoMA Design Store BOPIS Service

Buy Online, Pick Up In Store

Time: 2022/05 - 2022/06

Role: Digital Design Manager

Project Overview: MoMA Design Store soft-launched its Buy Online, Pick Up in Stores (BOPIS) service in late 2020 before I joined. Our stores were half-closed during the early phase of the launch because of the pandemic. In 2022, the Digital Commerce team decided to return to the BOPIS service and advertise it. I looked into the online customer journey and located the stops where the team can surface BOPIS.

1/ PRODUCT CATEGORY PAGE

The global nav will be dynamically targetting by geo-location – only customers who are within 20 miles to Manhattan will see this banner.

As more than 95% of our customers land on a product category page while they are visiting our site, adding the service to the filter column make it prominent.

The screenshot shows a product category page for the MoMA Design Store. At the top, there's a banner for 'In New York City? You can buy online & pick up in one of our stores. Learn more.' Below the banner is the MoMA Design Store logo. The navigation bar includes links for New, For the Home, Office, Tech, Accessories, Prints & Artists, Books, Kids, Only at MoMA, Holiday, Gifts, and Sale. A search bar and a shopping cart icon are also present. The main content area displays a grid of products, each with a 'NEW' badge. A sidebar on the left contains a 'Price' filter and a 'Pick Up In Store' filter, which lists three locations: Museum Store (11 W 53 St, NY), Design Store (44 W 53rd St, NY), and Soho Store (81 Spring St, NY). An in-grid content block on the right is titled 'Buy Online, Pick Up In Store' and features a MoMA logo with a location pin. It includes text: 'You'll have the option of buying online and picking up at our stores by selecting "In New York City? Pick up today." during checkout.'

An in-grid content block stands up from the products populated on the category page, making a higher impression to the customers.

2/ ADDED TO CART POPUP & CART

When the product a customer added to his/hers/they cart, we want to highlight the BOPIS service when available.

With the new flyout design, we can also feature more than the "Successfully added to cart!" message and promote more programs & products at the same time.

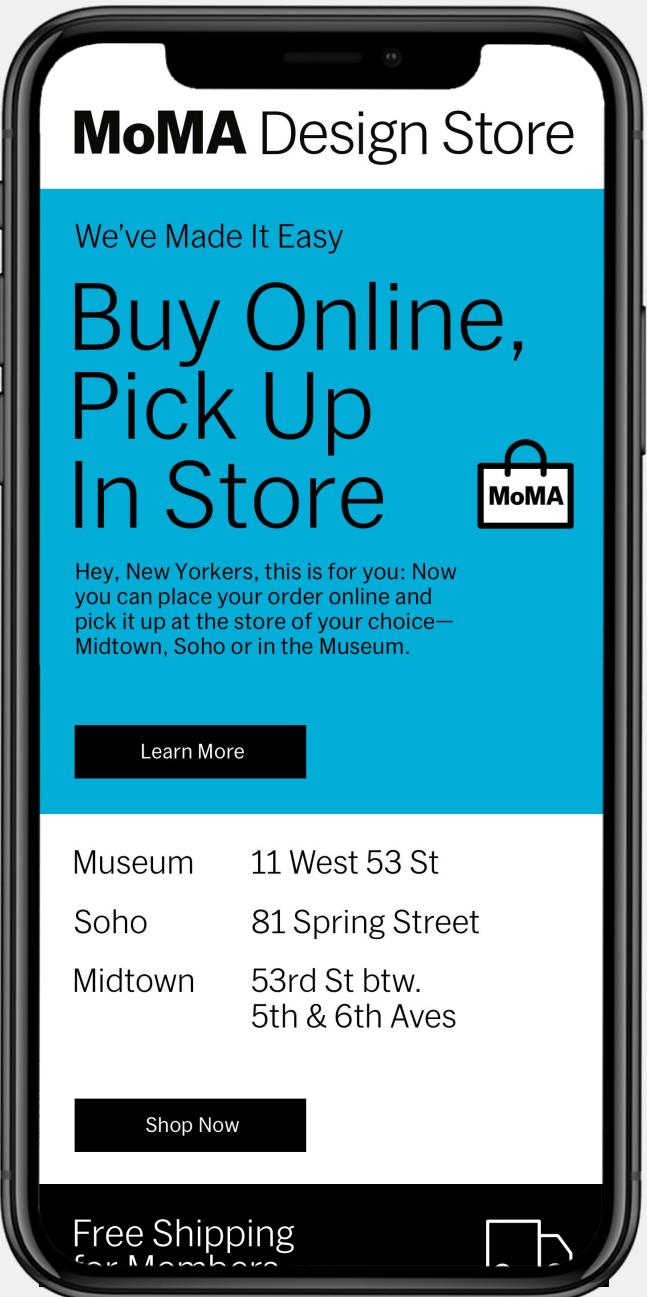

Although we want to surface BOPIS on the Cart page, it is not the priority.

The image displays two screenshots of the MoMA Design Store website, showing different ways to present a successful addition to the cart.

Screenshot 2 (Bottom): This screenshot shows the "Your Shopping Cart" page. It lists two items: a "Hollywood Hills Desk Clock" and a "Champion Crewneck Sweatshirt - MoMA Edition". The sweatshirt item includes a note about a "MoMA Employee Discount Applied at Checkout". To the right of the cart, there is a "Order Summary" section with a breakdown of costs (Merchandise: $210, Member Discount: -$84, Shipping: TBD, Tax: TBD) and an "Estimated Total" of $126. Below this is a large "Proceed to Checkout" button. At the bottom of the page, there are three informational callouts: one about gift wrapping, one about being a MoMA Member, and one about online pickup.

4/ EMAIL & SOCIAL

I also designed the launch email and social media content to promote the service on different digital channels. Although these are not conversion drivers, it is important to educate our customers and raise awareness.

Jane Smith Agency Website Redesign

Time: 2020/05 - 2020/12

Role: Junior Art Director

Project Overview: As the Junior Art Director at Jane Smith Agency, I had the opportunity to lead the design of the agency's new website.

I took the initiative to do the initial research and built the information architecture. I communicated directly with a programmer and adjusted the design to fit best for both the visual presentation and the backend. I collaborated with a senior art director, a web designer, and copywriters to finish uploading all assets. I also researched and initiated the SEO strategy for each page and critical assets.

Women-owned, operated and led, we are a

1/ RESEARCH AND INFORMATION ARCHITECTURE

I analyzed our past website and identified the key elements, which are our work, who we are, and ways to contact us.

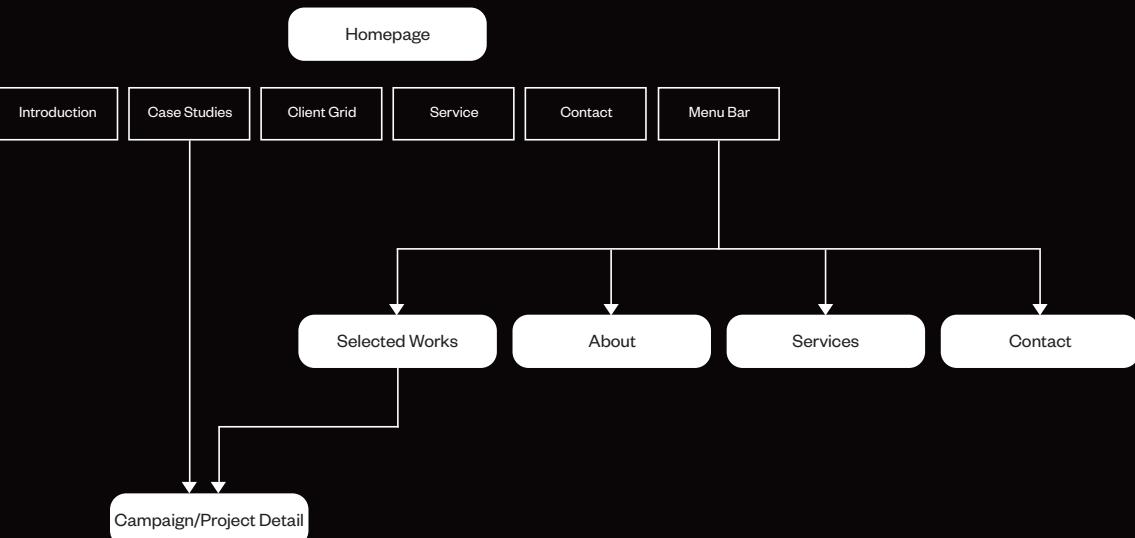

All these elements can be spread out to Homepage, Work, About Us, and Project Detail Pages.

From here, I proposed several possible user flow to my team, which helped to land on our final information architecture structure.

Original Flow

Updated Flow

2/ VISUAL DESIGN

I collaborated with a web designer and a senior art director to test out the visual design of key elements to find the best way to tell our story. Because the agency provides a wide range of service, from branding, marketing strategy and pricing, to campaign, digital design, social media, and websites.

The key visual is the top section of the homepage, and how to show our multidisciplinary work including campaign videos, social media content creation, prints, digital design, websites, and statistics.

I created several iterations of the top of the Homepage that highlights a concise quote that shows the personality and the agency reel.

The image shows two versions of a case study card for Fabletics. The left version features a large, full-bleed background image of a woman in a black sports bra and leggings performing a plank on a beach. Overlaid on the top left is the brand name "Fabletics" and a block of placeholder text: "Lorem ipsum dolor sit, consectetur adipiscing elit sed do eiusmod". Below this is a "VIEW CASE STUDY" button. The right version is a smaller, clean card with the same layout but without the large background image.

I introduced two ways of presenting each project on the homepage, indicating the scale of each case study. The team decided to use the larger one for all case studies because the full bleed background is more impactful and clean.

The image shows two versions of a case study card for Clé de Peau Beauté. The left version features a large, full-bleed background image of a woman in a dark dress looking off-camera. Overlaid on the top left is the brand name "Clé de Peau Beauté" and a block of placeholder text: "The most luxurious beauty in the world needed a global repositioning.". Below this is a "VIEW CASE STUDY" button. The right version is a smaller, clean card with the same layout but without the large background image.

I explored different ways to tell the story in the beginning of each case study page.

From website design module, to social media module, and the image carousel, I created different content blocks to showcase variety of projects the team have worked on.

It is important to showcase the beautiful work as well as to show the impact our work have made.
